STORIES OF BATS.

SCROFULA rican and Indian Aborigines Who Con-aider Them a Table Delicacy. Bats are found in various places, and n cold climates hibernate during the winter; in other words, they are enabled to enter a dormant state and live for months without eating. So complete is this sleep that in cases exmined the most delicate instrument failed to detect breathing on the part of the animal, and in another instance the bat was placed under water without any apparent harm resulting from the extended bath. The deep sleeps are generally passed in trunks of trees or caves, and in the latter myriads of bats are often found.

Far from being timid, the bats of India are extremely bold in their depredations, and it is told of an officer newly arrived in the country south of the Punjaub that he was alarmed at aight by loud noises upon his piazza, and thinking an attack was being made by native robbers, he spened fire with his revolver, to find that the uproar was caused by fruit-bats that had been robbing a wild-almond orchard and and brought the nuts under the cover of his veranda to open them.

Mr. Fraser, a raturalist, who traveled extensively in Ecuador, describes a bat that went fishing, diving down to the surface of the water and picking up small crustaceans which were swimming near the surface. The bat, according to the same authority, is very affectionate. Referring to two kept as pets, he says 'They were social, though both were males, usually langing side by side Sometimes they brought their faces togeth r and licked each other's open months in a most ingular manner i

While bats have wings, they are enfirely different from those of a bird. Imagine a man's inger as long as his body and booming out a soft membrane attached to the sides and ending at the feet, and an idea of the bat's wings may be gained; each finger, with a single exception, is lengthened out and connected like the ribs of an umbrella with this extremely delicate and sensi-

Some of the small bats nip and bite when attacked or taken; but to human beings the odor is in many cases quite sufficient to drive any but a collector away. This is particularly noticeable in the bat known scientifically as cheiromeles torquatus. The body is almost naked, and the odor so strong, overpowering and offensive that people have seen rendered sick while merely making a drawing of one.

Bats are famous for their habits of ntemperance, and a party of drunkon ones is often met with. Their condition is due to their love for the toddy which they obtain from the chatties of cocoanut trees. So intoxicated do they become that they are often found at the foot of trees sleeping off the effects of their debauch, and so fall victims to the

Some of the American Indians do not object to roast bat, and the big fruit-bats of the Indian peninsula are considered great luxuries by the natives. As these animals have a stretch of wing of five feet it must require no little moral courage to eat one.—Chicago News.

The extent of the work carried on may be judged when we say that the quantity of printed matter supplied yearly to the various authorities amounts to 120,000,000 sheets, of which the post and telegraph offices alone take 13,000,000 and 60,000,000 pieces in books, etc Postage and revenue, etc., stamps are dispatched to their various destinations during the year in 20,000 boxes, having a total weight of one million kilogs. Post-cards and official forms are annually prepared to the aumber of 12,000,000. Altogether the establishment turned out last year over 1,173,500,000 pieces of different sorts of money paper, having a nominal value of nearly 1,060,000,000 marks, equivaent to an average daily production of 3,500,000 pieces, to the value of nearly 7,750,000 marks As the work-people are not allowed to leave the establishment until the end of the day's work. a building had to be constituted to serve as a dining hall. This erection is maintained by the work-people themselves, each of whom contributes a yearly sum of 21 marks.— Inland Printer.

New and Old Violins.

There is a great deal of nonsense afloat about the "new principle" of making violins, by which new instruments are as descrable as old People are all at sea about the worth of a violin. Why, if $100 were paid for a new violin, as is often advertised, it is a high price, showing less wisdom than an abundance of money. Any sum above $100 is an artificial price, just as in the case of China bric-a-brac, where fashion makes the market The fashion is rather violent I might add, at present, and violins made on a "new principle" are quoted high. The value of age is that it mellows the tone and there is no principle that can accomplish that. The ear of the average mortal is not sensible to the finer qualities of tone, and hence a new violin is as exquisite to it as the oldest Cremona. Twenty-five dollars is a good price for a new violin, but there is no quotation on an old one. One rule is that it is worth what we can get -St. Louis Rely Awaited BAN PRANCISCO, July 18.—The curtain at the end of the second act of the great.

THE EAWARIAN REVOLUTION. The Curtain Palls at an Interesting Crisis-Further News Anxieus-

Hawaiisn drama dropped at the most critical juncture, and its next uprising is anxiously awaited by the vast audience of the world. Whether it will rise to dis-play a scene of carnage or the beautiful Signor Persico Flattering the Irish figure of white-robed peace is difficult to predict. The last steamer which brought news from Honolulu left there at two o'clock on the afternoon of July 5, and at four o'clock King Kalakana was to have been presented with the nitimatum of signing the new Constitution, eminently objectionable to him, or failing to do so, the alternative of possible civit war. Burmises as to what his action in the matter has been areage as varied as they are numerous, no two persons having ex-actly the same ideas. Should the King persist in his refusal to sign the new Constitution, the revolutionary party is known to be so determined that the King's person and, perhaps, his throne will be en-dangered. The King builds great hopes on the opportune arrival of English mon-or-war, on which he relies, apparently, not only for personal protection, but for assistance. On the former be can count, perhaps, but not on the latter, as the treaty signed in 1848 with France and England provides that the two nations 'engage reciprocally to consider the Bandwich islands as independent, and never take possession either nor under any other form, of any part of the territory of which they are com-posed." This treaty was recognized and concurred in by the United States in 1844, and is still in existence. England being debarred by this treaty from establishing a protectorate over the Bandwich islands, is not likely from purely philanthropic motives to render aid to King Kalakaua.

King Kalakaua.;
In all probability the King will yield to the demand to sign the new Constitution, and things will then resume their wonted quiet. The King is naturally piqued and angry at having to bow his head before the storm of public indignation, but as soon as his vanity recovers he will better appropriate the situation and will count to appreciate the situation and will come to think it is more agreeable to be a King, even though hedged in with a high and strong constitutional fence, than to have

THE ANGLO-TUREISH MISSION.

LONDON, June 18.—The winding up of Sir Henry Drummond Wolff's mission to Constantinople is so inconclusive and tame as to be farcical when compared with what was not out to be accomplish with what was not out to be accomplish-ed amid a great flourish of promises and prophesies. Lord Malisbury was at first so sure of an English protectorate over Egypt that he actually allowed the statement to go uncontradicted for some time that a convention to that effect had already been signed by the Bultan. Then it came out that the convention had marely been drawn up and submitted, and still later it became known that the Porte refused to take any action until the proposed arrangement had received the sanction of the Powers. A long period of hesitation followed, which has finally been ended by the Sultan flatly refusing to sign the convention, and Sir Henry Drummond Wolff has started on his way home to London to make his official report of dismai failure.

The general opinion is that the ignominious outcome of the negotiations will damage Lord Ballsbury's standing as a diplomatist, but on the other hand there are many who take a different view, and think that matters have turned out very much as the Premier intended they should. They take the view that should. They take the yiew that Lord Salisbury never really aimed at a conclusion of the Anglo-Turkish convention, but wished to investe the Sultan into an open exhibition of his foar of and dependence upon Russia. The effect of Turkey's gravitation toward an alliance with Russia. sia, however unwilling, is sure, they claim, to imperil her suzerainty over Egypt, owing to the waskening of moral new constitution, and defy the revolutionists, as predicted last week, he would do if possible. Gibson, even though imprisoned, attempted to incite the natives to rise up against the revolutionists, but his actions were quickly nullified, and he is now more closely confined and quarttored.

St. Joseph. A Police Officer Shot by an Ex-Convict. CHICAGO, July 18 -Officer William Halloran, of the Twenty-second precent sta-tion, was fatally shot Saturday night by Mike Lynch, a web-known thief and exconvict, whom the policeman was trying to arrest. Halloran, acting under orders from headquarters, had sworn out va-grancy warrants against various loughs of his district, among whom was Lynch. Going along Wentworth avenue Siturday evening, Halloran saw Lynch and, step-ping up to him, informed him he had a warrant for his arrest. "You'll never arrest me," said the ex-convict, at the same time pulling a re-volver and firing.

Halloran fell to the ground and Lynch fied, but was afterward captured. The stricken officer was conveyed to the county hospital, where he died early yesterday morning. He was thirty, six years old, and leaves a wife and two children, "No Ice; No Work."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 18.—Twenty carpenters who were employed on an addition to the Coates House are on a strike, refusing to work any longer with-out a supply of ice water. The cause is trivial, but the circumstances which led to the strike are interesting. The Contes. House managers are thomselves superintending the work on the large addition, and have in their employ two foremen and about twenty-five carpenters. Two days ago several of the men left, as the wages, $2 50 a day, did not satisfy them.

They were replaced by others Saturday at noon, the hottest hour of the day. The men were told that the hotel people would LICKED THE BLAKKET STONE.

Washington, July 18.—Reports received by the United States hydrographic office here indicate this summer that an unusually large number of great icebergs have drifted very much further to the southward than they usual appear. In been reported. Captain Baker of the the Dutch steamer W. A. Sholten mentions passing one on his last trip westward that was 300 feet above the water and would have covered 100 acres at its base. As about one-eighth of the verg is above the surface of the sea, the depth can be easily calculated. Captain Brocket of the North German steamer Adolf reports that on his last voyage to America he passed three great icebergs one 250 feet high and the others at least 100 feet. An English captain saw the largest one of the year last week. Captain Campbell of the freight steamer St. Rowans passed an accherg or series of then two miles long and 300 feet above the ocean at the highest point. This was in latitude 46, almost in the track of the passenger steamers between New York and Liverpool, and only 240 miles farther north than the latitude of Washington. He Was Strangled.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 18.—News has been received here of a lynching which took place at Union City, Ky., on Saturday, John Thomas, a negro, had been employed by a farmer named Turner. While the family were away from home. Thomas committed an assault upon the farmer's eleven-year-old caughter, who, frightened by the black brute's threats, kept the secret for two days. Finally Mrs. Turner learned the truth, but Airs, Tarner learned the truth, but Thomas had meanwhile fied. He was speedily captured, however, and his preliminary examination took place Saturday, a large crowd being present. He denied his guilt, but was positively identified by his victim, who nointed him and any arrange at large mean. The out among a dozen colored men. Chicago, July 18.—George Scott, employed by the Western Transit Company, was butten, and probably fatally injured by a horse which, it is supposed, had gone mad through the intense heat. The horse had been out in the sun during the day, and about five o'clock was driven into the covered dock of the company at the foot of Rush street. There is acted as though tired, dropping his head and Suddenly the horse commenced to tear and kick, at the same time snapping victously. Several men, among them Scott, rushed up to quiet the horse. The animal caught Scott by the chin, cutting the hip to the bone and tearing his throat badly. He was taken to the Vexuan Brothers hespital, where it is feared that he is su tering from blood poisoning, and may be attacked with hydrophobia. The physicians entertain no hopes of his recovery.

Death and Funeral of Stephen Mahannah in Mt. Zion Township.

The news reached the city Sunday morning of the death of Stephen Mahannah, one of the leading farmers of the county, which occurred at his home in Mt. Zion township Saturday night at 12 o'clock. Death resulted from neuralgia of the heart, his first prostration taking place on July 10th as he was returning from the barn to the house. He recovered in a short time, but on Thursday he experienced another fainting spell. It was one of great severity, and kept him unconscious for six or eight hours. His condition was alarming, and his relatives and friends were constantly at his side ministering to his wants and comforts. Shortly before his death he was again prostrated and expired. Mr. Mahannah was in the 59th year of his age, and came to Macon county from Washington county, Pa., in 1851. Mrs. I. R. Mills, of this eity, is the only child of his first wife. His second wife survives, there being no children by the last marriage. Henry Mahannah, of Mt. Zion ; Harvey Mahannah, of Decatur; Eli Mahannah, of Colorado; Jacob Mahannah, of Wichita, Kansas, and James Mahannah, of Oberlin, Kansas, are brothers of the deceased, and Mrs. Maria Latham, of Sedgwick, Kansas, is his sister.

The deceased was recognized as one of the successful farmers and stock dealers of the county, and was the owner of many broad acres, besides possessing a yast amount of personal property. He has represented his township as a superrisor in the county board, and was a delegate to the state Republican convention held in Peoria in 1884. He was a man highly respected by the people of his neighborhood and also by all others who enjoyed his acquaintance.

The funeral took place this (Monday) forenoon from the family residence at Prairie Hall. The officiating clergymen were Revs. Baker and Bankson. A numher of Decatur friends went out on the early train this morning to attend the CHARLEY SMILEY DEAD.

The death of Charles Smiley, aged 32 ears, occurred at Kansas City, Mo., on Sunday evening. Consumption was the cause of death. The deceased was a son of Mrs. Laura Smiley, mother of Mrs. Albert S. Morgan. Mother and sister were with the deceased when he passed away. Burial at Kansas City. Mr. Smiley lived in Decatur for a while, having been with Mr. Morgan when he opened the Palace saloon and also at the post office saloon. He was a member of the Decatur lodge of Knights of Pythias. He leaves a young wife, but no children. TWO DAYS OLD.

The infant of Ed. Babel, residing on East Wood street, was buried this forenoon. The babe was but two days old.

In the section from Livingston to Kendall county the condition of corn is reported as promising only from 50 to 75 per cent. of an average yield. In the other counties of the northern grand division corn is in more promising condition, but needs more rain. In the central and southern grand divisions the condition of corn is between 90 and 95 per cent. of an average. The oat crop is nearly all harvested, and the yield will he light in the northern, fair in the central, and slightly above the average in the southern. Pasture lands are in very poor condition in the northern, and but little better in the central, and below an average in the southern division.

three times, much to the discomfort of Bob. The features of the game were the pitching of Staley, Starr's fielding and double play to Couley, Simpson's one hand catch in left field, and Spence's double play. Hays made a clean home run off Copeland, and Downing played a great game at short.

The Decatur Club went down to Tay lorville and wiped up the pasture with the Actives of that ancient town. The score was 29 to 0 in favor of Decatur. The battery was Staley and Golden, and Manager Mueller came back with a few dollars ahead on the trip. The boys came home blasting the wonderful umpre, John Perry. He is said to be the rankest index of a care that ever stood behind John Perry. He is said to be the rathest judge of a game that ever stood behind the bat, and yet our sluggers shut out the Actives. In the last inning there were three men on bases, and Golden had a passed ball. The men moved up a base, and one came home from second. Staley and the captain of the Actives protested, talling the ampire that they had agreed telling the umpire that they had agreed before the game that but one base should be taken on a passed ball, but the umpire insisted that the runner could have all the bases he could get, whereupon Stale; walked out of the diamond and the game ended. Perry called for a watch and at the expiration of a minute declared the game forfeited to Taylorville by a scor of 9 to 0. Everybody gave him the laugh Mueller had settled with the Actives and had his cash in his pocket before the collapse of the game.

At Peoria the Bloomington club was rictorious by a score of 7 to 6.

He read his letters, examined the papers, and then sat looking into the ire for a few minutes. What should be do with these three young ladies? Without doubt, they were the daughters of his cousin, Simon Scotield, who had just died, down in Clover Hollow. Simon had had a good income all his life, but it had never occurred to him to saze any of it. He had eaten and drank of the best, educated his daughters expensively, dressed them as if they expected to become the wives, of mil-honaires, and had finally died, in as-gentlemanly a fashion as he had lived. leaving them without means and had by hampered with debt. Of course, their first idea was to come

The eldest, a fair, handsome girl, looking very interesting in her deep crape, sat in a picturesque attitude on the low sofa. The second was tall and dark, rather inclining to the majestic. The third was a wistful-eyed, plump little person, with quick, vehement motions and cheeks glowing with the excitement of thus finding herself in a inquiringly upon her. "That is easily done," said Mr. Chekson. "Women are succeeding all around us in this big city, why shouldn't you?"

"We thought that perhaps you could recommend us to some gateway of success," said Constantia. "Humph!" said the old gentleman. 'Would you like to teach?''

"We couldn't stoop to any thing square miles. It is a colonial possession of Holland. The surface of the menial," said Haidee, with a shudder peaks running from one end of the island to the other, and another range

"Could we, dear Constantia?" "Now, look here, my dears," said Mr. Clickson, "you mustn't be unreaconable. In this world money can't be earned unless you work for it. There are plenty of Intelligence Bureaus all around us. There are newspapers running over with advertisements for women in one capacity and another. If you can't suit yourselves in New York you can't anywhere." The three young ladies looked blank-

Haidee Scofield was silent.

"Why was it," she interrogated herself, "that every one who was rich must needs make himself so unpleas-Constantia compressed her full red lips. She could starve, she thought, but she could not demean herself to a level with the cancille. But Kate spoke up, eager and irrepressible as ever. "That would suit me," said she,

"That is the proper frame of mind, little girl," said Mr. Clickson, chuckling and patting her head. "But I don't quite understand why your sisters are so indignant " Haidee tossed her head, Constantia said nothing, but looked unutterable things at the renegade.

"Take your hat and shawl off, my dear-Kate, I think you said your name was," said Mr. Clickson. "I'll call some one of the maids to show you to your room.'' "Am I not to apply for the situation at once?" said Kate, with a puzzled look. "It's here," said Mr. Clickson. "You are to keep house for me, Kate." "For you, Cousin Clickson!"

"Why, yes for me," said the old gen-tleman. "I've been thinking of adopting rather it should be my cousin's child rather than any one else. So if we continue to suit each other-" "But," cried the bewildered Kate,

I thought you wanted a house-Haidee burst into tears.

"And I not to stay, too?" she said Mr. Clickston shook his head. "I fear it will be too menial a situation for you," he said, sarcastically. "And me?" sobbed Constantia. "Can not remain?" "Thanks, no," responded the old rentleman. "You and your sister are both of too high-strung temperaments to put up with so blunt an old fellow as I am. Besides, I don't altogether like the spirit you have shown. Kate is the only one of you who really means to support heiself. And Kate is my choice. And now if there is any thing

I can do to assist you-" . He looked so coldly expectant that Haidee and Constantia felt there wa nothing for it but to withdraw. As far as they were concerned, the rich cousin had proved a failure. But little Kate, the Cinderella of the family, she was happy!-Amy Randolph, in N. Y. Ledger island is mountainous, a range of lofty skirting the south coast. All of these mountains are of volcanic formation, and there are on the island thirty-eight coleanoes, the most of them constantly active Some at the most terrible cruphons on record have occurred on thi island among which may be mentioned the outbreaks of the volcano Papanday ang in the ven 1772, of Galunggong in 1822 and Krakitoa in 1882. Between the peaks or the mountains in the central part of the island are several plateans which it very fertile, and have a delignified of mate, owing to their eleshore Along the north side of the island is a long, low and very fertile plain All of the island is well watered. The seasons are two, the wet and the dry and the temperature of the island is very equable. All tropical fruits, birds and animals abound in the lowlands, and on the high plateaus all grains and fruits of temperate climates can be successfully raised. Java is one of the simulpal coffee-growing countries in the world, sugar is next in importance, then comes rice, of which two crops ateannually raised, indigo, pepper, tea and tobacco are also exported The population of Java is estimated at over 17,500,000 About 30,000 Europeans reside on the island, there are also about 190,000 Chinese, and some 20,-000 Arabs and other foreign orientals; the rest are natives. The Javanese are almost entirely occupied in agriculture, though they have some knowledge of the mechanic arts, and make bricks and tiles, build houses and boats, and work in metals with some skill. The women of the country also weave a stout cotton cloth and make a coarse silk cloth from 1aw silk imported from China The ancesters of the present race of Javanese must have had considerable knowledge of architecture, judging from the remarkable specimens of ancient temples, most of them in ruins, to be seen throughout the island, but this knowledge has been entirely lost. The Javanese have made some progress in music, of which they are passionately fond, and they have both wind and stringed instruments. In religion the Javanese are Modamune. In religion the Javanese are Mohammedans, this faith having been established among them by the Arabs in the hfteentli century - The principal unit in Lay mese politics is the village, whose officers are all elected by the people, unl are charged with the collection of
